	requirement that the court must consider a child's

a.	Expressed wishes and feelings.	0
b.	Ascertainable wishes and feelings.	(

Answer (b) – The court must consider whether the child's wishes and feelings are rational, have been unreasonably influenced, or are genuinely and reasonably held. Such matters are explored in TE v SH and S [2010] EWHC 192 and H (Children) [2014] EWCA Civ 733. In essence, wishes and feelings must not simply be taken at face value.
